

OFFICIAL RETURNS ARE RECEIVED FROM GILA AND MOHAVE

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—M. W. Todd was trying doors in the sixth floor of the Hotel Baltimore here when House Detective Alex Johnson discovered him. "What doing?" inquired Johnson, politely, at the same time grabbing Todd by the neck. "God afternoon," responded Todd, biting Johnson's wrist. "I'm looking for a bird's-eye view of your town." A munny judge offered to let Todd enrich the public treasury by $200 if he was in town the next day.

FORMER PHOENICIAN DIES WEALTHY IN ARGENTINE, SOUTH A.

According to a cablegram received yesterday morning by Sheriff John Montgomery from the American consul at Buenos Aires, Argentine, John Noble, a well known sheepman who lived in Phoenix several years ago, died recently at Comodoro Rivadavia, his ranch in Argentina. The cablegram asked the sheriff to get in touch with relatives of Mr. Noble.

The brief message stated that Mr. Noble left an estate valued at $300,000, which is in the custody of his native wife. Mr. Noble has a wife living in Mesa, with her two stepsons, Walter and William Tyson. Sheriff Montgomery communicated with her yesterday and she promised to go to the sheriff's office as soon as convenient to discuss the cablegram from the consul in South America.

Noble, who was born and reared in England, was a well known sheepman in the Salt River valley several years ago. He had learned the sheep business in England, and after coming to this country, started in the sheep business again. He eventually became wealthy in the venture. He then built the Noble building where the Dorria-Heyman Furniture company now is located.

According to reports, Noble went broke on the contract of the building and shortly afterward left Phoenix for England. There, it is said, he went into the sheep business again, and after interesting British capital in the venture, went to South America. The success of the undertaking is indicated by the estate left. Noble is said to have lost an arm many years ago.

Roads in Apache county in better shape. Snow is gone, but side roads and mountain roads still unsafe.

East of Flagstaff in Coconino county, the roads are open but west there is considerable mud, although the roads are in passable condition. The road south through the Tonto basin should not be attempted at this time.

Ash Fork to Needles is fair, excepting rough stretches between Nelson and Hackberry. General rains have made considerable mud, but the roads are safe. Washes must be crossed with care.

Holbrook to Winslow good north of the tracks. From Shumway to Showlow, on the Ft. Apache road, the going is bad. St. Johns road in good shape, although rough in places.

Roads in Gila county are soft, but considerable work is being done on them and they should be in good condition shortly.

Recent rains in Pinal and Pima counties have improved the roads to some extent. In Santa Cruz county roads are in good shape, as they also are in Graham county. Although Cochise county has experienced considerable rain lately, the roads are not affected appreciably.
